

THE WAKE FOREST CTSI TEAM PRESENTS:

Fall 2025 Educational Learning Series

As fall approaches, the Wake Forest Clinical and Translational Science Institute (CTSI) Educational Learning Series returns, offering practical ways for researchers, students, and professionals in Charlotte, Wake, and throughout the Midwest to strengthen their skills and connect with peers. Whether you're just beginning your research career or looking to deepen your expertise, these sessions offer valuable opportunities to grow your skills and connect with peers.

FALL 2025 FEATURED SERIES:

Biostatistics, Epidemiology, and Research Design Education (BERD) Lunch and Learn

In collaboration with Duke and UNC, the BERD groups at Wake Forest are offering a shared seminar series focused on practical tools and resources in biostatistics, epidemiology, and research design.

Leadership in Focus

This dynamic virtual series features interviews with experienced leaders who share real-world strategies and lessons in leadership.

Nursing and Interprofessional Research Lunch & Learn

Held bimonthly, this series supports nursing science and interprofessional research through hour-long sessions on research design, methodology, data presentation, and emerging trends.

Study Coordinator Resource Forum (SCaRF)

SCaRF is a monthly virtual forum for clinical research professionals at all levels. It's a space to share insights, hear from expert speakers, and build community.

More than a set of workshops—it's a collaborative space that fosters mentorship, professional development, and lifelong learning.
