CMC-Steele Creek

CMC-Steele Creek is the first healthcare pavilion in our region. This innovative facility and its unique service offerings give everyone in our community access to a higher level of patient-focused care.

Q. What is a healthcare pavilion and what kind of services does it provide?

A. As a healthcare pavilion, CMC-Steele Creek is an innovative outpatient facility designed to give local residents fast and convenient access to healthcare services.

- 24-hour emergency department
- Physicians board certified in emergency medicine
- Charlotte Pediatric Clinic, Mecklenburg Medical Group (internal medicine) and Piedmont GYN/OB
- Advanced diagnostic imaging, including a 64-slice CT scanner, ultrasound and X-ray
- Comprehensive laboratory services and a retail pharmacy

Q. Why a healthcare pavilion?

A. Studies have shown that most people who come to a hospital don't need to be admitted overnight. Instead, they typically require emergency outpatient treatment or a scheduled outpatient procedure. A healthcare pavilion like CMC-Steele Creek can bring these in-demand healthcare services to a community in a more intimate setting while also costing far less to build than a typical hospital.

Patients who need hospitalization or are critically injured can also be transported via helicopter or ambulance to CMC-Pineville or to Carolinas Medical Center, the region's only Level I Trauma Center.

Q. In addition to emergency care, what other services does CMC-Steele Creek provide?
