

Cleveland Regional Medical Center

Established in 1910 as Shelby Hospital, Cleveland Regional Medical Center in Shelby, North Carolina is the flagship facility of Cleveland County HealthCare System, along with two sister facilities, Kings Mountain Hospital and Crawley Memorial Hospital. Cleveland Regional offers a wide variety of comprehensive services that permit residents of Cleveland County and surrounding counties to receive convenient, sophisticated care. The hospital's premier services, referred to as "Centers of Excellence," include oncology, cardiology, rehabilitation, surgery, women's and children's services, and critical care.

Cleveland Regional's Emergency Department earned the distinction of being North Carolina's first Level III Trauma Center in 1997. With an expansion in 2007, it offers the latest in modern diagnostic equipment with a wide array of treatment options. Also, as an accredited Chest Pain Center, Cleveland Regional's Emergency Department staff demonstrates the expertise and commitment to quality patient care by continuing to enhance services for our community. As a result of a close partnership with Carolinas Medical Center (CMC), immediate medical consultations are available through video conferencing, using specialists based in Charlotte. Rooftop helicopter transport is also available for those patients urgently needing advanced care at CMC's Level I Trauma Center in Charlotte.

Cleveland Regional is proud of its "Women's Life Center," a 37-bed state-of-the-art service area completely dedicated to women's health. The Center offers educational classes for parents, siblings and grandparents as they prepare to welcome their new baby.

Cleveland Regional offers high-quality service to people throughout North Carolina's foothills region. Our uncompromising excellence and commitment to care give patients more of everything – every patient, every day, always. It's who we are at Cleveland Regional Medical Center.
